Jim, Erin and Michelle,

I conducted an inspection at Chemetco yesterday.

1. The drums from the foundry building that were moved to the receiving building have been placed in two 20-yard boxes. The demo plan called for them to be placed in DOT containers. This has been accomplished. There remains seven boxes of shredded circuit boards. They also found 10 drums of tin dross in the was building that was previously thought to be grease. These drums were not part of the demo plan. Unless anyone has any objections it appears they are done with this portion of Section 5.4.4 of the demo plan

What is left from the demo plan

1. Final Report
2. When AIS demoed the AAF they removed a 5,000 gallon steel caustic tank. The Estate sampled the 18,000 gallon pit under the tank and found that the water was hazardous for lead (8.36 TCLP) and pH (12.8). The Estate theorizes that liquid caustic or water from the washout of the caustic tank was disposed of in this pit during demolition. There is also two feet of sediment in the pit. The sediment is most likely from past Chemetco practices not from the demo work. I have attached three photos of the pit. I have attached three photos of the pit.

The Estate continues to load fines from the DIS building into supersacks. The full sacks are being placed in the Receiving Building. I observed the process and it is being done inside of the Dome Building Foundation. I have attached one picture of this.

Chris
